Veteran Officer Interview – Racine Police Department & Racine Unified School District
Name:

Quick Safe & Sound Overview if people want it

1. What is your role at RPD? How long have you been an officer?
2. What is your experience with working as an officer in schools?
3. What, in your view, is the primary goal of having a police officer in the school?
4. When you have a good day in the school - what does that look like?
5. When you have a regular bad day (not an extremely bad day like an active shooter) in the school - what does that look like?
6. If you could create a school resource officer program that fit both your interests/values and the school's interests/values, what would it look like?
7. One of the notions that I came across when reading about school resource officer programs and from my own experience working with a specialized unit in a police district, is that officers doing non-traditional police work can sometimes struggle to feel successful unless there are clear outcomes. Is this true in your experience? What outcomes do you think would be relevant measure of success for a school resource officer program?
8. Do you think there is space to clearly delineate between law enforcement relevant/response events and school disciplinary relevant/response events?
9. What training do officers need to do this work successfully?

10. What training do teachers need to work successfully with a school resource officer program?

11. What RPD support do officers need to do this work successfully?

12. What RUSD support do officer need to do this work successfully?

13. What do you think about the school resource officer program in Racine being an extension of the COP program?

14. What do you think about a multi-disciplinary team, of which the school resource officer would be a part, to help establish and sustain school safety?

15. What didn't I ask that you think is relevant to building/sustaining a strong school resource officer program?

School Community Oriented Policing Officer Program

RACINE POLICE DEPARTMENT & RACINE UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

Bree Spencer

Director of Evaluation & Technical Assistance

We unite residents, youth, law enforcement and community resources to build safe and empowered neighborhoods.

Overview

Safe & Sound is a non-profit operating in Milwaukee, Wisconsin focused on uniting residents, youth, law enforcement and community resources to build safe and empowered neighborhoods. As the Wisconsin High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area's Prevention Initiative, Safe & Sound developed a technical assistance program to support communities outside of Milwaukee. The goal is to help municipalities improve public safety through collaboration and the development of creative cross-sector programs.

Safe & Sound approached Racine regarding technical assistance, the result of which is this proposal, developed at the request of Chief Art Howell of the Racine Police Department (RPD). RPD is looking to grow their relationship with the Racine Unified School District (RUSD). The goal is to leverage existing relationships between RPD and RUSD, capitalize on the Racine Community Oriented Policing (COP) House structure and take the best aspects of the current school resource officer program to create a standardized approach for both RPD and RUSD.

Several key community stakeholders were interviewed during the development of this proposal, including several members of the Racine Police Department. I am grateful to the people who took time to meet with me and share their perspectives and insights. Overall, they contributed necessary context about the environment in Racine, ideas for a successful school COP program and key areas of focus.

The contents of this proposal were developed from a combination of stakeholder interviews, readings referenced at the end of this document and Safe & Sound's organizational experiences with collaborative work in public safety.

Current Partnership & Motivation for Change

Under the current partnership, RPD officers are able to pick-up extra shifts as part-time school resources officers. The officers are supervised and paid by RUSD, but act in a law enforcement capacity under the policies and procedures of RPD. The supervision structure can be confusing and has created some challenges for effective collaboration between RPD and RUSD. While many of the part-time school resource officers have good working relationships with the school staff, there can be discrepancies in school discipline policy that officers find confusing and a blurring of lines between law enforcement and school policy enforcement.

RPD has benefited from veteran officers serving as part-time school resources officers, particularly when those officers have successfully implemented community oriented policing practices in the schools. One challenge with the current structure is the variability in officer-school interaction, which is largely based on the individual officer and the relevant school environment. In a desire to identify best practices and standardize those practices across the school district, RPD and RUSD are working together to develop a consistent school resource officer model to maximize the meaningful work officers are already doing in the schools.

Currently 25% of juvenile arrests in Racine County come out of the schools. This reflects a high number of incidents and/or situations in which school resource officers are engaging with students through a traditional law enforcement approach. One goal of changing the school resource officer program is to expand the toolbox available to officers operating in the schools. By creating more direct collaboration with RUSD and implementing best practices including COP strategies, RPD hopes to improve the learning environment.

It is important to note that of the 25% of juvenile arrests coming out of the schools, Case High School has the highest apprehension rate. As such, it will be important for the Mt. Pleasant Police Department to be involved with this process as well.

Framework Already in Place for New School COP Officer Program

The primary goal of having COP Officers embedded at RUSD is to improve school safety and help build educational environments that are increasingly conducive to learning. RUSD in its 2016 School Climate Strategic Plan highlights a desire to evolve the school district safety and security model. As noted in the plan, the purpose of this redesign is “to ensure that there is strong alignment of school and community services utilizing the community policing philosophy that promotes problem-solving and proactively addresses immediate concerns in the schools and across our community”.

In addition to streamlining the school resource officer program as outlined above, RUSD will focus on crisis intervention training, increased collaboration with law enforcement throughout Racine County and the implementation of Youth Court. For complete details of RUSD’s Strategic Plan see the “Racine Unified School District School Climate Strategic Plan 2016” attached to this document.

A joint management structure will oversee the new School COP Officer program. RPD has assigned a member of their command staff at the Deputy Director level to manage the school resource officers in collaboration with RUSD administration.

The current burglary/truancy car officers will be reassigned into new, full-time school resource officer positions. One of these officers will be located at Horlick High School and the other will be placed at Park High. Case High School, located in Mt. Pleasant with approximately 80% of its student body comprised of young adults from Racine, already has a fulltime Mt. Pleasant school resource officer. Part-time school resource officers will continue to support safety and build positive engagement at the high schools and help the full-time school resource officer realize their vision for the school.

Additional staffing for the remainder of the school district, including middle schools, will be comprised of officers selected from the pool of moonlighting-eligible officers. The selected officers will form a mobile unit that will engage the rest of the district schools through proactive prevention approaches, much like school resources officers in the high schools, and as first responders, when there is a call for police service from a school.

Recommendations

1. Capitalize on the already existing COP House program by naming the program officers School COP Officers rather than School Resource Officers. The goal is to grow the Racine brand of community oriented policing while making a clear delineation between the old approach and the new approach to police school engagement.
2. Create a multi-disciplinary school safety team, at each school, to help develop the COP Officer program, ensure ongoing communication as well as thoughtful collaboration between RPD, RUSD and area community service providers. This would be a formal expansion of a concept that is already, informally, in place. This team should consist of RUSD school administrative staff, the School COP Officer and community resource providers such as Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI), juvenile court staff, a mental health professional and any relevant prevention/early intervention providers. The goal is to cut through red tape, streamline communication and address challenges students may have before they result in criminal justice action.

Example: The Red Hook Community Justice service team in Brooklyn, which served as the model for the Milwaukee Drug Court service team is structured similarly to the school team I am envisioning. The Red Hook team consists of a judge, prosecutor, defense attorney/public defender, the individual's case manager and if applicable their substance abuse counselor. By speaking together ahead of the hearing, all members of the team come to a better understanding of the individual's situation and progress. They are then able to come to an agreement about needed next steps. The team notices and incentivizes small wins for the individual and act as a support system for the individual while fulfilling each of their given roles.

Example: This group might be able to leverage home visits to students dealing with truancy or other issues obstructing their ability to engage meaningfully in school. The School COP Officer may have the latitude to access parents, after-school hangouts and other environmental factors that affect a student's life more easily than other service providers at the table.

Opportunity: JDAI is willing to convene the School Safety Teams and get the right people to the table.

3. Principals and executive administrative staff at each of the three high schools Horlick, Park and Case, should be involved in the multi-disciplinary school safety teams. This serves to ensure there is open communication and prioritization between the school and the police, allowing for the fulfillment of responsibilities and policies of each organization while honoring the Principal's vision for each school.

- 4. Create both a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) and a Standard Operating Procedures (SOP) document between RPD and RUSD. When the SOP is developed, it should include language that specifies the nature of behavioral events that will require police attention and the nature of events that require only school employee intervention. Steps should be taken to ensure that both COP officers and school district employees understand their responsibilities and boundaries. It is important for success of the program to ensure that COP officers do not become the disciplinarians of the school, but that teachers and administrators take on the responsibility of addressing lower-level behavioral issues that arise in a school setting. This particular issue is one that fuels significant concern in the academic research and in the general public about having law enforcement officers in schools. Clearly articulating the rules and responsibilities while thoughtfully ensuring that teachable moments in a teenager's life don't become criminal record will, I believe, go a long way to ameliorate these concerns. See the National Center Brief for School Resource Officers Brief, pages 7-9, for detailed recommendations on MOU and SOP creation.

“An SRO [School Resource Officer] who observes a violation of the school code of conduct preserves a safe and orderly environment by making sure that a school administrator is aware of the violation so that school discipline can be determined solely by school officials.” – National Association of School Resources Officers, National Center Brief for School Resource Officers, page 8

- 5. The Mount Pleasant Police Department should be involved in the planning and implementation of the new School COP Officer program. This will help ensure consistency for RUSD and smooth the pathway for increased collaboration in the future between the Racine and Mt. Pleasant police departments. It is also important, due to the high amount of juvenile arrests that are currently coming out of Case High School, that Mt. Pleasant take advantage of a new School COP Officer approach.
- 6. Hold two brainstorming and planning meetings with RPD officers prior to finalizing the new program design and implementation. There should be one meeting held with supervisors to discuss the program, explain the thought process behind this change and solicit their support for helping lead the second meeting. The second meeting should be held with the entire team of officers who currently choose to pick-up shifts in the schools. While it will not be possible to accommodate all officer suggestions, RPD recognizes and should utilize their in-house expertise to establish some of the program details. This will help to ensure the new program is the best possible fit for both RPD and RUSD while establishing ownership and buy-in from participating officers.
- 7. Prior to rolling out the program, hold a few community engagement meetings around the topic of School COP Officers. Transparency with the public by providing opportunities for specific areas of community influence can help build buy-in for the program. It will also provide insight for both RPD and RUSD about what is most important to community members regarding police serving in the schools.

- 8. All School COP Officers, full-time and part-time, should attend training in the areas outlined on page 10 of the National Center Brief for School Resource Officers, namely: Prevention, Early Intervention, Diversion, Adolescent and Developmental Psychology and Substance Abuse. See the brief for further detail on training for school resource officers. This training should also include goals of the program, meaning and tracking of outputs/outcomes, the Racine COP brand and culture as well as the overarching reasons for the program change. It may also be relevant to train officers on research around effective school resource officer programs as well as mistakes that have been made in other jurisdictions. It is important to note that RUSD is specifically interested in ensuring that officers operating in the school system are taking crisis intervention and response training.

Example: During training, specific examples should be provided for officers to clearly demonstrate the type of situations that have been escalated to a law enforcement level that perhaps shouldn't have been. Racine County has examples and this would be a great transition into training provided by the juvenile justice system.

Example: Another potentially helpful aspect of training could be COP Officers, current or former – especially successful school resource officers, who are willing to articulate their evolving thought process towards community oriented and problem oriented policing. One point brought up while interviewing officers was that good relationships in the schools also help officers in the streets. Officers have increased insight into street level criminal activity and increased cooperation from youth outside of the school if they have strong relationships with students inside the school.

Training Opportunities: The Youth and Family Division of the Racine County Human Services Department is willing to repeat Trauma Informed Care and Juvenile Brain Development training for the School COP Officers and for Administrative School staff, like they did for RPD two years ago.

Training Opportunities: The Eastern Division of the US Attorney's Office in Wisconsin may also be able to support relevant training for RPD or RUSD as they have funded some Classroom Management Training for the Milwaukee Public Schools in the past.

9. Align efforts within the schools with the programming at the COP Houses.

Example: When School COP Officers and/or other members of the School Safety Teams engage parents, they can encourage volunteerism with the Community Panels Program (CPP). This first time offender youth accountability program sees 300-400 youth per year with an incredible 70% non-recidivism rate in the two years following engagement with the program. CPP could potentially hold panels at the COP Houses. Currently the program does not utilize the COP Houses because it costs money to rent the space necessary to hold a Panel at the house. I do not know how decisions are made about costs associated with community use of the COP Houses but this might be an area that can be changed to create greater access to the houses by community service providers. Similarly, if intervention is needed but does not rise to the level of a student engaging formally with the criminal justice system, COP Officers can refer kids to alternative programming, like CPP.

Example: Utilize the COP Houses as potential internship spots for young people. When School COP Officers meet students interested in entering the career field of criminal justice, they could connect them to these internships. At Safe & Sound, we believe that access to community-facing program delivery prior to entrance into the criminal justice field can be an extremely important, formative first step towards a thoughtful, community-driven approach to the work.

10. The School COP Officers and/or the School Safety Teams should create a referral process and make specific efforts provide students and parents access to relevant community service information. For the School COP Officers, this should include building relationships with referral providers to secure responsive service for families and ensure that all necessary stakeholders are represented on the School Safety Teams.

11. The mission and target outcomes of the School COP Program should be set prior to implementation and revisited each year of the program. One of the challenges mentioned in the research materials is that school resources officers sometimes find it difficult to understand what success looks like in their position. These officers are asked to operate outside of the scope of traditional policing. Given that police officers engaging in community oriented policing positions often face misunderstanding and sometimes even ridicule from their more traditional colleagues, an individual officer's ability to find value in their work becomes even more important. Without a clear path to success, officers may either feel that their work is not valuable or revert to traditional policing within the school setting.

Potential Outcomes:

- Decreased number of youth being referred to the criminal justice system for exhibiting behavior below a certain threshold.
- Increased number of early/alternative intervention referrals
- Increased school attendance
- Decrease in criminal incidents in and around the school
- Clear anecdotal evidence demonstrating improved collaboration between RPD and RUSD, with increased incidents of positive engagement between partners
- Positive change in attitude towards law enforcement officers from both students and RUSD colleagues and vice versa
- Increase in positive interactions and decrease in negative interactions between officers and students
- Increase in requests for School COP Officer led programming in schools
- Decrease in truancy rate or Increase in number of hours students are spending in school
- Increase in graduation rate

12. Data on legal legitimacy amongst school stakeholders should be gathered prior to or within the first three months of the program. This will likely need to take the form of surveys of various school community members including students, parents, faculty, outside resource providers and police. Baseline data will help provide benchmarks against which program effectiveness can be marked. It also sets the stage for creating an evidence-based model, should the School COP Officer program prove to be a success. Setting up an evaluative process should not only serve the macro level purposes of the program but also help School COP Officers, School Safety Teams, funders and community members understand the impact of the program.

13. Consider creating an accessible, transparent process available to students and parents if they have a concern or complaint regarding a School COP Officer. This, I believe, will help demonstrate to stakeholders, especially parents, that both RPD and RUSD are transparent and open to community feedback.

14. There should be some documented processes for determining if a School COP Officer is a good fit for the position and clear steps to take if the officer turns out not be suited for work in the school environment. Officers unfit for work in the school should not remain in this position as negative behaviors by a School COP Officer could have lasting impacts on the success of the program.

15. Increase the amount of information available about COP Houses on the RPD website and create a new School COP Officer page for the program.

Considerations

The length of time that officers are assigned to the School COP Officer role is very important. These positions cannot be regularly switched around or relationships with both youth and RUSD employees will suffer. When good, well-liked officers do make a transition away from the school, it will help sustain relationships if RPD gives the officer some time to say goodbye to students, faculty and parents thus preparing everyone for the change. A period of time allowing the two officers to overlap for the purposes of training is also advisable.

General police culture and community feelings about legal legitimacy will impact the effectiveness of the both the School COP Officer program and the COP House program.

If teaching safety curriculum or job training presentations becomes part of the School COP Officer position, I would suggest exploring a potential partnership with local colleges to secure college credit for officers providing this service. This would incentivize officers, help bolster their professional development and encourage them to expand their conception of police work.

One of the benefits of new cross-sector collaborations is that many interesting, new ideas come about organically. As a result, it will be important especially in the early stages of the program, to ensure that someone is documenting the process and revisiting the structure. There will likely be many lessons, quickly. As such, this program framework would benefit from proactive leadership and some latitude to learn and evolve.

Schools may benefit from Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) input from School COP Officers. In Safe & Sound's experience CPTED projects are also an excellent engagement tool with youth and may be a good starting engagement point for the School COP Officers.

It may be advisable to consider either developing a new monthly safety meeting for parents at RUSD or engaging the PTA meetings with regular updates regarding public and school safety.

One interesting SRO model used in Anchorage Alaska places an officer in each high school. That officer is also responsible for all the schools that feed into the high school. This would ostensibly allow the officer to build relationships with kids, parents and teachers extending across a young person's entire educational K-12 career.

Racine could benefit from a strong mentorship program. COP Houses could potentially be involved in either bolstering existing programs by helping to capture or develop tangible outcomes, or helping incubate a new, stronger mentoring program. COP Officers and School COP Officers could work with the School Safety Team, the PTA and faith-based groups to drive volunteerism and participation in the program. `

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Racine Police Department is working in collaboration with the Racine Unified School District and the Racine County Human Service Department to improve the safety, security, and health outcomes for students in the Greater Racine community. Informed by law enforcement experience and policy research from a variety of sources, including the New York Police Department, the National Association for School Resource Officers and the success of the local COP philosophy, the Racine Police Department will standardize and implement successful police-youth engagement strategies within Racine public schools.

Attached is a memo that outlines, in detail, the motivation for this change, and highlights key elements and features of this new plan. For a comprehensive view of the program, including links to relevant research, please read the full memo. At-a-glance key changes and highlights of the program are listed below.

- RPD and RUSD are working in together to bring the Racine COP model of engaging a network of partnerships into the high schools to engage students.
- The plan was presented to the City of Racine Common Council, the Racine Unified School District and the Racine Police and Fire Commission, with all governing/oversight bodies independently approving this strategic partnership.
- The new command structure introduces the element of shared responsibility and joint accountability between on-duty police personnel and off-duty officers working in a part-time outside capacity within the school system.
- The new staffing structure transitions resources from the two dedicated truancy and burglary suppression positions, to the two new full-time COP school officer positions (one position assigned to Horlick High and one position at Park High).
- Consistent with training standards in place for members of existing specialized units within the RPD, School COP Officers will receive assignment specific training, including, but not limited to training associated with the Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI), trauma-informed care and oppositional defiance disorder.
- In addition to exposure to law enforcement specific youth training, School COP Officers will benefit from a wide-breadth of local resources available to youth and families in Racine. Greater collaboration between school district officials, HSD personnel and other community partnerships will ensure that students benefit from all available resources.
- The basic framework for this new police-school engagement strategy is now in place; however, additional components, including a program evaluation structure, will be incorporated as the process moves forward. If this school safety strategy proves as successful as the local neighborhood COP philosophy, this initiative may serve as a model for police agencies and school districts across the nation.
- The Racine Police Department has enlisted the technical assistance of Safe & Sound, a Milwaukee-based organization that is a component of the Wisconsin HIDTA law enforcement organization. Safe & Sound will assist in this important effort through providing research support and evidence-based approaches for the implementation of this new collaborative.

MEMORANDUM

TO: School COP/Safety and Security Personnel      DATE: February 17, 2017

FROM: Chief Howell      Under Report No. _____

Subject:      School Safety and Security Division Overview (School COP Model)

On August 3, 2016, the Racine Police and Fire Commission (PFC) affirmed the plan to add the newly proposed school safety and security division to our department structure. Prior to PFC approval, this organizational change was reviewed and approved by the Common Council and RUSD School Board respectively. The baseline objective of this initiative is straightforward. Through the implementation of focused and strategic partnerships between law enforcement personnel, school administrators, students and other stakeholders, it is our objective to provide for and maintain a safe, healthy and productive learning environment, while providing a positive law enforcement role model for students. As the various stages of this broad-based strategic partnership are rolled out, questions will likely arise. The objective of this communication is to provide an overview of the goals and objectives of this initiative, as well as an explanation of the outcomes we seek to achieve and the roles of our respective partners and stakeholders under this shared-management policing model.

Since the introduction of problem-solving strategies at the neighborhood level in the early 1990s, a measure of success has been achieved with regard to improving the quality of life for area residents. Consistent with the manner in which success has been achieved at the neighborhood level, we will rely on the introduction of Community Oriented Policing (COP) and Problem Oriented Policing (POP) problem-solving strategies to achieve our stated collaborative goals and objectives in Racine schools.

Beginning with the "case for change," which highlights the motivation for our organizational change in direction, through the statement of goals, objectives and expected outcomes, the following information has been assembled to increase overall awareness, understanding and buy-in relative to this strategic change in organizational direction and school safety oversight.

Case for Change

There are multiple factors that formulate the motivation for organizational change. Building safe, healthy and productive school environments is inherently challenging. While the overwhelming majority of students respect authority and follow the rules, the stability and tranquility of the school environment is unfortunately disrupted by a small number of students. Through identifying and responding collaboratively to student needs and focusing on preventative engagement, we can positively impact school safety while reducing the need for apprehensions and tickets. When law enforcement actions are required, we will respond thoughtfully and professionally.

When responding to criminal activity within the school environment, a traditional police response remains the best and most appropriate approach. Most police-student encounters within the school district however do not involve overt criminal acts. School administrators and law enforcement personnel are often confronted with a range of scenarios that, while disruptive, adversely impact the environment. Many such scenarios do not fall under the traditional umbrella of criminal acts. From students who live with various degrees of mental illness to school-aged students who exhibit Oppositional Defiance Disorder (ODD), today's law enforcement practitioners and school administrators are expected to intervene and bring resolution to a broad range of societal and systemic problems that are complex in nature and not easy to resolve. In light of this challenge, a more strategic and coordinated approach to resolving such problems is needed.

Adding to the case for change, following a review of calls for service in the school district (5-year history), statistics show that police calls for service in local middle schools is nearly as high as the call for service volume in area high schools. Under the pre-existing RUSD staffing model, officers employed by the district in a part-time outside employment capacity have been assigned to local high schools exclusively. Based on a review of available data, a different approach to staffing is needed as we pursue the goal of improving safety and security throughout the district.

As we move forward with this collaborative and take a deeper dive into the data, it is our objective to work to identify those locations that experience a higher volume of police calls for service. Where needed, we will take action to address such locations as dictated by the circumstances. Under the new safety and security division, officers who serve in a part-time outside employment capacity will work in collaboration with school administrators, police commanders and supervisors, investigative and patrol personnel and other stakeholders in order to improve school safety and security.

Through the application of proven COP, POP and Intelligence-Led Policing (ILP) strategies, issues that have consistently plagued the district will be identified and strategically targeted for resolution via a range of intervention strategies. Dedicated COP officers were introduced into the school environment to spearhead this effort.

Our response to criminal activity within the school district will remain firm, consistent and straight-forward. Our response to more complex issues that adversely impact the school environment must however evolve. For example, children who live with various forms of mental illness, and students who face issues that require the introduction of trauma informed care strategies are two such examples where greater exposure to creative school-based problem solving strategies is required. In addition to the proven evidence-based solutions outlined by the Strategies for Youth organization, our response to the special needs of our local student population will be enhanced through the introduction of strategies advanced via the Juvenile Delinquency Alternatives Initiatives (JDAI) detention alternatives change model.

For additional information on the JDAI change model sponsored by the Anne E. Casey Foundation, see the following publication:

<http://www.aecf.org/work/juvenile-justice/jdai>

Finally, in considering the case for change, statistics compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice, show that approximately 19,000 sworn officers are assigned to work in school districts across the nation. Special (standardized) training for such assignments is not required in many school districts. On a national level, a number of officers have participated in specialized School Resource Officer (SRO) training; however, many departments (RPD included) have allowed sworn members to work in the school environment with no specialized resource officer training.

To complicate the already challenging landscape of creating a safer, healthier school environment, there have been a number of high-profile incidents occurring in schools across the nation over the years. As a result, the School Resource Officer (SRO) model has come under intense scrutiny.

For additional information on the Case Against Police in Schools, see the following publication: http://www.justicepolicy.org/uploads/justicepolicy/documents/educationunderarrest_fullreport.pdf

While we believe the presence of officers working in the school district on a part-time outside employment basis has achieved a measure of success over the years, it is projected that the efficacy of our overall safety effort will be enhanced under the expanded police-school partnership.

Confidence in our new policing model will be enhanced over time as police-student relationships are developed and enhanced. As the student population we serve become exposed to the problem-solving strategies that have been successfully implemented at the neighborhood level, similar outcomes are expected within the school environment.

Partnership Based on NYPD Model

In reviewing a number of existing police-school partnerships throughout the nation, the NYPD model stood out as a premier model/philosophy upon which to build our local effort. In 1998, the Board of Education in New York (Division of School Safety and Security) formed a strategic school-based policing partnership with the NYPD. Through the support of an expanded range of specialized units within the NYPD, officers assigned to the school safety function immediately benefited from the knowledge, expertise and vital resources provided by specialized NYPD units.

As members of our frontline supervisory team are selected and our formal command structure is fully in place, it is our objective to mirror the information-sharing and organizational efficiencies that have served the NYPD well in their pursuit of their mission. The mission of the New York Board of Education/NYPD school policing partnership is as follows:

“The mission of the School Safety Division is to provide a safe environment, conducive to learning, where students and faculty can be free from hostility and disruptions which can negatively impact the educational process”

Due to the enormous size of the NYPD and their school district partners, the infrastructure, number of divisions, and areas of management involved are significantly larger than the scaled-down model that is under construction locally. It should however be noted that, the key element and transferrable aspect of this proven model is found in the shared oversight of all matters relating to school safety and security. Under what is known as the “Cooperative Framework,” city officials, school administrators, and law enforcement officials in New York created an effective strategic management oversight model, ensuring the effectiveness of the school-based partnership.

This unique partnership is illustrated in the following example. Student (X) has a history of juvenile apprehensions, a history that is not known by school administrators. The same student has been diagnosed with ADHD, and as a result, this student attends school under a formal Individualized Education Plan (IEP). Due to the sensitivity and statutory protected nature of juvenile apprehension records, school administrators are not always aware of law enforcement sensitive matters. Similarly, due to the protected nature of medical records and related HIPPA legislation, law enforcement officers are not privileged to be notified of sensitive educational plans. Under the new partnership, the dual nature of role of the safety and security command position opens a window of opportunity for information-sharing where appropriate.

While our new policing strategy is loosely based on the successful NYPD model, equally important in the introduction of our local strategy is the integration of our successful COP philosophy.

SRO vs. COP School Policing Model

As we work to introduce the modified NYPD SRO school policing model locally, the manner in which this strategy is “branded” will be critical. As previously stated, for a number of reasons the SRO model has been tainted in some jurisdictions. In some circles, public perception is such that, SRO officer programs are perceived to contribute to, if not outright designed fill prisons with students.

For additional information on the Pipeline to Prison theory, see the following publication: http://schottfoundation.org/sites/default/files/resources/School%20to%20prison%20toolkit%20FINAL.pdf

Due to the name recognition, built-in credibility, and widespread acceptance of the local COP philosophy, we are well-positioned to avoid the stigma associated with the national SRO model. Through introducing our school policing strategy under the well-known and respected COP brand, we will enjoy a measure of acceptance early-on. In today’s extremely anti-police climate, proper branding is essential. Unlike many jurisdictions, we are uniquely positioned to introduce this new model with a measure of organizational trust, respect and citizen confidence.

Research Component/Technical Assistance (Safe & Sound)

As with any major organizational change, a great deal of planning and research has gone into this effort. This broad-based strategic planning process remains ongoing, as a number of elements have yet to be implemented. Operating under the Milwaukee High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA), the Safe & Sound organization is a component of the coalition of state, federal agencies that makeup the HIDTA Investigative Support Center.

In pursuit of our stated goals and objectives, we enlisted the technical assistance of the Milwaukee-based Safe & Sound Organization. The mission of the Safe & Sound organization as follows:

“To unite residents, youth, law enforcement and community resources to build safe and empowered neighborhoods”

As we seek to gain additional insight and understanding of the current school safety environment, we will expand on initial stakeholder interviews through conducting a series of formal surveys. Combined, additional interviews and stakeholder surveys will provide valuable information as well diagnose problems and develop our strategic response. In particular, a student survey will be conducted as soon as an appropriate data collection instrument is constructed, as student feedback is critical to our ability to assess the perceptions and needs of our primary customers. Additionally, law enforcement and school administrator surveys will be conducted, as the long-range success of this effort will require the support of and buy-in from this frontline group of stakeholders.

In 2014, the below-referenced statewide survey was conducted on the impact of the law enforcement in Minnesota schools. It is our objective to collaborate with our research partner to produce a similar work-product locally. As available, proven research methods and statistical analysis tools, such as the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS) software package will be used to process and validate the survey process, as the use of such proven resources will promote process fidelity.

For additional information on the Statewide Survey of Law Enforcement in Minnesota Schools, see the following publication: https://dps.mn.gov/divisions/ojp/forms-documents/Documents/SRO%20REPORT.pdf

Role of COP School Officers (SARA Model)

Consistent with the manner in which the COP philosophy has been successfully implemented at the neighborhood level, school COP officers will serve as problem solvers. As outlined in the position posting and further delineated in the formal job description, school COP officers will be responsible for performing a range of duties and responsibilities. Through utilizing the proven Scanning, Analysis, Response and Evaluation (SARA) problem-solving model, school COP officers will work in concert with key stakeholders to achieve the desired outcomes. Using the SARA model as a guide, school COP officers will accomplish our stated goals as objectives.

The SARA model is further defined as follows:

Scanning

Under the Scanning component of the process, school COP officers will identify reoccurring problems, prioritizing those issues that require immediate attention and enforcement action. During this early stage, goals are developed in response to what is learned through Scanning. This methodology includes the task of analyzing call for service data, crime reports, patterns and trends, the identification of repeat offenders and perpetual victims (bullying, etc.), the identification of locations where problems occur (lunch room, local restaurants in the case of open campus locations, etc.)

In addition to assessing crime data under this stage, community meetings, stakeholder surveys, and consultation with a broad range of community partners is required to gain a working knowledge and understanding of the issues that adversely impact school safety and security.

Analysis

Following the collection of critical information, the next step is to establish what data tells us. During this component of the process, the scope of the problem is identified, resources are identified, and a plan of attack is formulated based on all available information. Resources to rely upon during this phase include, but are not limited to, crime analysis, crime mapping, student feedback, technical assistance, and information obtained through contact with victims, offenders and witnesses.

Response

As a greater understanding of the problem is achieved and priority problems and related goals are developed, the appropriate strategic response may be initiated. In some cases, the response to problems will require law enforcement response. Other cases may require a response from Human Services Department (HSD) personnel or support from other external agencies or community partners.

Assessment

After the successful identification of reoccurring problems, the analysis of said problems and the execution of a strategic response, the efficacy of the response must be evaluated. Where necessary, the response must be adjusted and improved. The assessment component of this process is continuous and ongoing, as conditions, trends, and priorities are fluid, constantly changing over time.

As applied locally, use of the SARA Model has assisted local COP officers in achieving our goal of reducing crime and improving the quality of life for area residents. It is anticipated that similar results will be achieved within the school environment through the adaptation of the neighborhood COP policing philosophy/strategy.

Role of Part-time Off-Duty Officers

Similar to the role B.E.A.T. patrol officers play in support of neighborhood COP house officers, school COP officers will need the support of officers currently assigned to the school district in a part-time outside employment capacity. Under the pre-existing model, part-time officers worked primarily under the direction of school administrators (most notably, principals). Under this structure, officers primarily served as first responders, focusing on and responding to crisis situations and other problems on a near real-time basis. External factors, such as neighborhood crime trends, the analysis of historical data, the identification of repeat offenders, perpetual victims and problem locations, did not typically fall under the duties and responsibilities of part-time officers.

Through the incorporation of strategic working partnerships between school COP officers, part-time officers, school staff members and police administrators, it is our objective to build upon the good work that is currently performed by the complement of officers who work in the school district. While part-time officers will remain focused on issues that impact their respective school assignments on a day to day basis, under the new collaborative approach, broader problem-solving strategies and working relationships with the school COP team will be cultivated. As in the case with the NYPD model, part-time officers will also have access to a broader range of RPD resources, units, intelligence, etc.

The above referenced unit collaboration already exists in some areas. Under the new structure, it is our objective to replicate and formalize existing information sharing networks, which will enable our members to maximize the best components of the existing structure, minimizing the adverse impact of disconnected workgroups.

Organizational Structure

Under this unique hybrid “Unified Command” model, part-time officers will continue to report to RUSD school administrators; however, strategic management will be shared under the new school safety and security division. To promote broader problem-solving networks and information-sharing cohorts, three sergeants (working in a part-time outside employment capacity) will serve as connectors between RUSD administrators and police commanders. One sergeant will be responsible for oversight of Northside school locations, one sergeant will be responsible for oversight of Southside school locations, and an intelligence sergeant will be responsible for managing the flow of critical intelligence (gang, drug and crime intelligence). The formal organizational structure is depicted below:

Training

Consistent with training standards and requirements for other specialized units and assignments within the department, officers assigned to the school COP function will require specialized training in order to achieve our stated goals and objectives. School COP officers will receive specialized training on issues relating to trauma informed care, Oppositional Defiance Disorder (ODD), JDAI strategies and other youth-oriented training that collectively, will enhance the overall efficiency of the school COP policing strategy.

Conclusion

The introduction of the new school safety and security division represents a major step forward for our organization. Similar to the ground-breaking neighborhood COP effort introduced in 1993, this new effort will be refined and enhanced over time. If successful, this model could serve as a blueprint for other agencies to replicate.

Based on our proven track record in successfully implementing the SARA model to solve problems and reduce crime, I am confident that we will be successful in replicating this success within the school environment. Thank you for your past, present and future contribution to our school policing goals and objectives which are in line with our overall mission.

Recommendations for Hiring

- Based on stakeholder interviews, especially those with RUSD, it is highly recommended that RPD and RUSD figure out a way to incorporate Unified staff input into School COP Officer hiring decisions. Principals would appreciate the opportunity to help select the officer that will be in their schools full time. It is the opinion of the technical assistant that incorporating key stakeholder feedback into the hiring process could significantly and positively impact partner buy-in to the School COP Officer program.
- Ensuring a transparent hiring process going forward should also help increase officer buy-in into the program.

Guiding Documents

- One major motivation for this program update is to build a more sustainable, governed and focused school officer program in Racine. One of the first and most important pieces of establishing a program infrastructure is the development of a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) and Standard Operating Procedures (SOP).
- The MOU is an agreement between RPD and Unified outlining the administration of the program including cost sharing information, supervision structure and other aspects of the program's framework.
- The SOP provides more day-to-day guidance regarding the program, its goals and the way that school officers and Unified staff should interact with school discipline. Per recommendations from all major sources for this project, the SOP attempts to clearly delineate between school discipline and matters of a criminal nature, among other things. The SOP is meant to be a living document that can grow and evolve as RPD, Unified and the community deem necessary.
- When changes are made in the future, it is advisable to figure out a way for officers, Unified staff and/or the community to be included in on the process. Requests for changes in the program should be able to come from each of these groups and be considered by leadership at RPD and Unified. If adopted, the SOP should be updated to reflect these changes.

Racine Police Department and Racine Unified School District School COP Officer Initiative

Purpose

In concert with RUSD’s core values of student-centered decisions, high expectation, equity, diversity, strong relationships, unity and respect, RPD officers will work in collaboration with the schools to provide for and maintain a safe, healthy and productive learning environment while acting as a positive role model for students.

This new phase of the Racine school-police partnership has been developed to ensure that there is strong alignment of school and community services utilizing the community policing philosophy that promotes problem-solving and proactively addresses immediate concerns in the schools and across our community. This program update creates a standardized framework for engagement in the schools that will ensure the integrity of the program over time.

This document outlines the procedures that officers operating within the schools and the district will adhere to when engaging with one another and with students. This is a living document and it will be reviewed at least once a year. It will be updated as needed based on organizational learning and the School COP Officer Initiative evaluation results.

Chain of Command

Under this unique hybrid “Unified Command” model, part-time officers (called “school officers”) will report to assigned sergeants who will be responsible for their supervision in the schools. To promote broader problem-solving networks and information-sharing cohorts, two sergeants (working in a part-time outside employment capacity) will serve as connectors between RUSD administrators and police commanders. The formal organizational structure is depicted below:

Roles & Responsibilities

- I. School COP Officers: Officers assigned full-time to a school

Consistent with the way the COP philosophy has been successfully implemented at the neighborhood level, school COP officers will serve as problem solvers. As outlined in the position posting and further delineated in the formal job description, school COP officers will be responsible for performing a range of duties and responsibilities. Through utilizing the proven Scanning, Analysis, Response and Evaluation (SARA) problem-solving model, school COP officers will work in concert with key stakeholders to achieve the desired outcomes. Using the SARA model as a guide, school COP officers will accomplish our stated goals as objectives.

- II. School Officers: Part-Time Officers

School officers play a role similar to that of the B.E.A.T. patrol officer in Racine neighborhoods. They engage residents and support the efforts of the neighborhood COP house. School COP officers will need the support of school officers currently assigned to the school district in a part-time outside employment capacity.

- III. Police School Safety Command:
  - a. The Deputy Chief will maintain communication with RUSD school administration and conduct face-to-face meetings at least twice per semester to evaluate the performance of services provided by officers in the schools.
  - b. The Deputy Chief will support the development and maintenance of positive, effective partnerships between RUSD, RPD and other stakeholders such as the Racine County Human Services Department (HSD).
  - c. The Deputy Chief and supervising Sergeants will train RPD officers on their role within RUSD's schools, relevant alternative programming like that offered by the JDAI Initiative and on the rights afforded to students. Trainings may include such topics as child and adolescent development and psychology; age-appropriate responses; cultural competence; restorative justice techniques; special accommodations for students with disabilities; practices proven to improve school climate; and the creation of safe spaces for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning students.

- IV. School COP Officers & School Officers:

One goal of the School COP initiative is to ensure that our response to student behaviors are proportionate and focused on positive problem-solving strategies for building better behavior and improving the overall safety and security climate. While striving to maintain order, RUSD and RPD employees will work in partnership to de-escalate crisis situations, using a range of traditional and alternative adjudication strategies designed to accomplish our broader school safety and security goals.

To ensure this is happening, officers will be afforded greater latitude to engage students in a productive manner. Where practical, punitive action will be supplanted with coaching, mentoring and leadership oriented strategies. Under the COP problem-solving model, officers will have at their disposal, a number of corrective action options outside of traditional law enforcement responses. Subject to the totality of the circumstances and the history of the students involved, the issuance of criminal citations, filing of delinquency petitions, referral to community corrections, arrest/apprehension, etc., may be avoided in favor of less punitive alternatives.

Some behavior will reach the threshold where a traditional response is required. Other scenarios, including, but not limited to trespassing; loitering; profanity and other minor infractions or disturbances (that do not involve physical injury, weapons, etc.) will provide officers with the opportunity and latitude to advance alternative strategies to improve behavior and student accountability.

Through embedding the COP problem-solving philosophy into the school system, and through introducing evidence-based strategies (including, but not limited to JDAI initiatives), low to moderate risk students will avoid the risk of being unnecessarily or disproportionately exposed to the criminal justice system.

Collectively, it is our objective to improve the school safety, security and wellness environment through maximizing the power of partnerships and community engagement. To this end, the following tenants will important aspects of the School COP Officer Initiative.

- a. Differentiate between disciplinary issues and crime problems
  - i. Officers operating in the schools are responsible for improving school safety, security and wellness. Clear delineation between criminal issues and school policy violations is an important tenant of effective school officer programs. School level policy, like dress code, is to be enforced by school faculty/staff, not officers. This delineation provides clarity to all school stakeholders as to the role of officers in the school. For example, officers should not confiscate or be asked to confiscate cell phones or enforce the dress code of the school.
- b. Practices shall include the following:
  - i. Whenever possible students shall not be arrested at school, except where the child poses a real and immediate threat to student, teacher, or public safety; or a judicial warrant specifically directs the arrest of the student in school. When possible, the execution of an arrest warrant shall be undertaken at a location other than a school. In emergency situations where the commission of a serious felony or misdemeanor has been witnessed by a police officer or if the police officer is in pursuit of a student for such a crime, the police shall have the legal right to apprehend such a student. However, before removing such juvenile student from the school building and/or school grounds, the police officer shall inform the Directing Principal and/or designee of such apprehension.
  - ii. School principals shall be consulted prior to an arrest of a student where practicable. The officer shall first contact the Directing Principal and/or designee and advise her/him of such a fact. The student shall first be summoned to the office by the Directing Principal and/or designee unless this could compromise the safety of the student, other students, staff or visitors to the school. If possible, a non-uniformed police officer shall make the arrest.

- iii. The student's parent or guardian shall be notified of a child's arrest as soon as practicable. The Directing Principal and/or designee shall record the name of the police officer, the time of the arrest, the name of the issuing authority of any arrest warrant, the nature of the crime for which apprehension is made and the place of custody or detention. The parents or legal guardians of the student should be notified immediately thereof by the Directing Principal and/or designee. It is of course also incumbent up on the police to notify parents immediately after an arrest of a student is made.
- c. De-escalate school-based incidents whenever possible.
- d. Prioritize communication with school administrators, faculty, staff and students.
- e. Enhance school safety on school grounds to help foster a safe and secure learning environment.
- f. As partners with the District, when appropriate and to the extent that school officers are familiar with various City agencies or community organizations; school officers may assist school staff and students with locating such City agencies or community organizations.
- g. As partners with the District, when appropriate, school officers may assist with resolving law enforcement issues that affect the School District and the broader community.
- h. Provide a positive liaison between the Police Department, the students, the school administration.
- i. Officers making an arrest or writing a citation/summons to a student at school, at a school event, or on a school vehicle shall notify the school principal or the principal's designee in a reasonable time-period, ideally within 24 hours.

V. School District

School District employees including administration, faculty and support staff will be responsible for the following aspects of this program.

- a. De-escalate school-based incidents whenever possible.
- b. Prioritize communication with officers and other school safety personnel
- c. Make every effort possible to handle routine discipline within the school without involving school officers in a formal enforcement capacity (ex. issuing citations) unless it is absolutely necessary or required by law. This includes ensuring that school administration and teachers do not ask officers to carry out disciplinary policy enforcement. For example, officers should not be asked to confiscate cell phones or enforce the dress code.
- d. Cooperate with Police Department initiated investigations and actions without hindering or interfering with the Police Department's or the assigned school officer's official duties.
- e. Provide ongoing feedback to the Police Department Deputy Chief for evaluation purposes.
- f. Offer an opportunity for the school officer and school administration to meet with community stakeholders at least once per semester.

- g. Notify parents as soon as possible when students are ticketed or arrested.
- h. Notify officers responding to a school-based infraction if any student involved possesses disabilities and/or an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) and who therefore may require special treatment or accommodations.

Training Requirements

Pre-placement training will become a requisite once a set training course is set up in Racine for RPD officers interested in working in the schools. Once the training course is put together, all current officers working in the schools will be required to attend the pre-placement training.

VI. RPD School Safety Command & School COP Officers

School COP Officers and the administrators that supervise them will complete 24 hours of school relevant in-service training in their first year and 8 hours of subsequent training each year.

VII. School Officers: Part-Time Officers

Part-Time Officers will complete 8 hours of school relevant in-service training annually.

VIII. Faculty & Staff

School administration and support staff, including hall monitors will participate in an annual training facilitated by RPD regarding the School COP Officer Initiative. Hall monitors will also be required to attend annual training on conflict resolution/de-escalation.

Collaboration & Coordination

IX. School Safety Team

School COP Officers will work in partnership with their school's leadership and faculty to help convene a formal school safety team. This group will work collaboratively and proactively to problem solve around safety issues at the school in line with the COP philosophy. This group will include a partnership with the Racine County HSD, as necessary, to ensure that mental health resources and information are available to students and their families.

X. Reporting

School COP Officers shall maintain daily activity reports and submit monthly summaries of these reports to the Deputy Chief. After reviewing the reports, the Deputy Chief will ensure that building-level and relevant district-level school administrators receive the information. Monthly summaries shall include, for each school, the numbers and descriptions of all incidents or calls for service; names of school officials involved (referring teachers, principals, etc.); student searches; student questioning; tickets, citations or summonses; filing of delinquency petitions; referrals to a probation officer; actual arrests; and other referrals to the juvenile justice system, as well as the alternative approaches utilized, like coaching, mentoring, leadership opportunities or JDAI Initiatives facilitated by officers. These reports will help organize officer efforts and activities as well as inform the evaluation process and inform key partners, allowing for a deeper understanding and appreciation of the school officer role.

Student Rights

- XI. As noted in the RUSD Rights & Responsibilities Document, students have a right to:
- a. Attend school and be a valued member of the school community
  - b. Be treated with courtesy, respect and dignity
  - c. Learn in a safe environment that is free of bullying, harassment and discrimination
  - d. Receive a clear explanation of the Racine Unified Schools Code of Rights and Responsibilities and receive a copy
  - e. Be informed of the reasons for any disciplinary decisions and be a participant in the interventions and discipline as determined appropriate for the behavior concern
  - f. Speak with a person in authority if he/she feels that unfair treatment has occurred
  - g. Receive information about how to appeal disciplinary decisions
  - h. Be accompanied by a parent or guardian to readmission conferences
  - i. Assemble and associate with other students to reasonable rules set by the school regarding time and place
  - j. Form, hold and express themselves provided there is no disruption to the normal operation of the school
  - k. Know how they will be graded and evaluated
  - l. Due process

School COP Officer Initiative Evaluation

XII. Surveys

Surveys will be administered to students, school faculty/staff and school officers related to the School COP Officer Initiative. Student survey questions will be added to a current school survey tool such as the questionnaire developed by Studer administered in the timeline developed by RUSD. School faculty/staff as well as school officers will take surveys electronically through an online survey service such as Survey Monkey.

XIII. Data

Baseline data for the initiative will be gathered in the beginning of 2017 by RPD. Information will include relevant school related crime statistics, HSD juvenile detention and apprehension statistics and historical data from the Youth Risk Behavioral Survey (YRBS) administered by RUSD in the past. RPD and RUSD will use this information to measure against updated crime and HSD statistics as well as current survey responses. The information gathered will be used to determine the overall effectiveness of the initiative as well as identify opportunities for growth and improvement.

Procedural Notes

XIV. Uniform & Equipment

- a. All officers operating within the schools will wear an RPD polo shirt and slacks or cargo pants while working in the school building.
- b. Officers will adhere to the plain clothes grooming policy of RPD when serving the schools.

XV. Overtime Policy

Overtime shall be paid in a consistent fashion according to the current Memorandum of Agreement between the City of Racine and the Racine Police Association, and the City of Racine and Staff Officers' Association of the Racine Police Department (Memorandum of Agreement), and this procedure.

PROCEDURE

All supervisors shall be cognizant of the provisions of the current Memorandum of Agreement. They shall ensure that overtime is paid in accordance with these agreements.

MEMBERS

1. Members shall not be paid overtime in the following incidents:
  - a. In any civil action, matter, or proceeding unless the civil action, matter, or proceeding was a direct result of actions or acts performed in the official scope of employment.
  - b. In any civil action, matter, or proceeding where the member is not appearing on behalf of the City.
  - c. While an officer is on "Ind Acc Pay" (industrial accident pay – TMS code 93) or suspension with or without pay (TMS codes 84 & 85).
  - d. When making an appearance at a function of either association, such as grievance, arbitration or PFC hearings, unless ordered by the City.
  - e. No overtime will be paid when officers are required to finish reports either by telephone or by coming to the station on their time when they have failed to properly complete the required reports while on duty or if the required reports were not submitted for timely approval.
2. When an off-duty officer involves him or herself in an actionable police situation, while off-duty and not working part-time in a law enforcement capacity, whether by choice or circumstance, the member shall receive compensation per special call-in as defined in the Memorandum of Agreement ("Labor Contract") with the approval of the on-duty Shift Commander.
3. When an off-duty officer involves him or herself in an actionable police situation, while off-duty working part-time in a law enforcement capacity and the officer receives approval to continue an investigation on City time, the member may receive compensation for only the actual time worked. This is not a Special Call-In as defined in the Memorandum of Agreement.
4. The off-duty employee may not ever be "clocked-in" while receiving simultaneous compensation, in any form, from any other employer.
5. When any member's shift is extended past their normal end of shift, the member is required to get the approval of the on-duty Shift/Unit Commander, prior to extending their shift, with the exception of being dispatched to a priority 1 CFS. Any member receiving approval to extend their shift must document the name of the

- approving Shift/Unit Commander along with the associated complaint number in the additional info box in the TMS entry.
6. Members who respond to an emergency or special call in shall follow the established protocol of starting their compensation when they receive the emergency or special call in. The requesting supervisor shall document the time members are notified in TMS, in place of the member clocking entry. Division Commanders will establish the documentation protocol for supervisors when calling in other members.
  7. All supervisory personnel are required to obtain the approval of the on-duty Shift/Unit Commander prior to extending their shift. An acting Shift/Unit Commander, designated by the Shift Unit Commander, will fill this role when the member's Shift/Unit Commander is off duty.
  8. Shift/Unit Commanders (including acting Shift/Unit Commanders), who approve a shift extension resulting in extra compensation, shall enter their approval in the Overtime Approval spreadsheet located in the "I:" Drive.
    - a. This shall be done prior to ending their tour of duty.
    - b. The approving Shift Commander will notify the newly arriving Shift/Unit Commander of the status and presence of all members below the rank of Lieutenant and all civilian employees whose tour of duty is extended.

Complaints should first be discussed directly with the staff member involved and the directing principal involved so that they have an opportunity to resolve the problems brought to their attention. If discussion with the staff member and/or principal does not result in a resolution of the problem, a complaint form should be filed. The following procedure will then be followed.

- a. Any complaint must be submitted to the Office of the Chief of Schools within five (5) school days after the event in question occurred providing the parent/guardian knew or should have known of the event in question. The complaint will then be forwarded to the school principal. The complaint form is attached to this document and is available online at:
<http://www.rusd.org/sites/default/files/uploads/forms/Parent%20Complaint%20Form%20English.pdf>

- h. If, in the parent/guardian's opinion, the complaint has not been satisfactorily resolved, an appeal may be made to the Superintendent, who will then respond to the complaint.

Guiding Documents - Lessons Learned

- When introducing infrastructure to a program that has been running informally, particularly if working within systems that are resistant to change – like law enforcement or education, people can be very resistant to new rules. Sometimes these changes feel oppressive or unnecessary. The SOP can be viewed as an easy target for people who are not open to seeing the program evolve. Good responses to this sort of criticism focus on the fact that infrastructure is necessary to protect the program from the whims of the personalities in the group and that the documents are not meant to be static, but rather evolve with the program. Input from stakeholders is welcome and needed for the program and its infrastructure to evolve.

School Community Oriented Policing Officer Program

RACINE POLICE DEPARTMENT & RACINE UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

Agenda

1. Introduction & Overview
2. 2016-2017 School Year Highlights
3. Data
4. Ongoing Developments
5. Opportunities for Improvement

Motivation for Change

1. Strengthen what is going well & formalize key components of the program
2. Address gaps and concerns
3. Ensure that the focus of the program extends beyond traditional school safety to include positive outcomes for students
3. Build a new program evaluation framework so that effectiveness can be measured and improved over time

School Officer Program Organizational Chart

New Structure Notes

1. We shifted away from the Truancy Patrol Model by taking the two spots from the truancy car and put one full time officer in each of the City of Racine's two largest high schools.
2. Full-time school officers are called School COP Officers. This is an intentional move away from the SRO name to reflect the changes in the program and to accurately associate the positive impression Racine residents have with COP Houses to the work of officers in the schools.

Best Practices

1. Progressive Response Hierarchy

ex: Case – only Admin can call for LE, Park – admin manages response via radio and clarifies requests for LE, Horlick – admin goes with LE to incident & staff has a progressive response strategy for incidents: teacher, hall monitor, admin, police officer

2. Clear delineation between school discipline and LE action

3. Address incorrect staff/police action directly and right away

4. Have consistent group of part-time officers in each school

Program Goals

1. Decrease in incidents addressed with physical restraint strategies
2. Increase in school safety – less crime & improved service referral process
3. Creation of a robust reporting mechanism to capture school officer activities
4. Positive change in the perceptions stakeholders hold about one another, especially students and officers
5. Officers feel like a part of the school team

Number of Calls for Service to Schools

	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015
High School	762	657	618	596	656
Middle School	589	605	479	465	437
Elementary	428	353	456	344	473

(calls for service – 09/01 -06/30)

For 2016, from September until December school year, there were 234 High School calls, 205 Middle School calls, and 214 Elementary School calls.

Synopsis from Call Analysis

1. Clear delineation of “on” or “off duty” and distinguishable in report of being identified as a Police Officer
2. Supplements for UMCC’s
  - lack of documentation in Phoenix
  - reason for contact with student
3. Use of Force Reports
  - virtually non-existent for school calls
4. Discretion based on formed relationships for incidents where profanities, yelling, screaming occur in school environments

Ongoing Developments

1. Implementation of a new part-time officer orientation at schools, including meeting with principal
2. Implementation of formal multi-disciplinary school safety teams, ideally with a mental health case worker from HSD
3. Creation of an improved, relevant training schedule for school-based officers
4. Creation of program evaluation plan to measure the effectiveness of the program and make improvements, includes gathering relevant survey data and RPD/Unified data
5. Implementation of a new middle school officer car

Training Goals

1. Non-violent intervention training – police and admin together
2. Officers could provide staff with relevant safety training
3. De-escalation training
4. ALICE Active Shooter Training for entire school team: Admin/staff/officers
5. More consistent training offerings, so that school team can get refresher training

Opportunities for Improvement

1. Mental health services – huge factor in the schools and currently under-resourced
2. Nuanced responses to non-criminal student behavior - focus on partnership with other service providers and positive relationship building with students
3. Clarification and updates related to school officer scheduling process
4. Formalize practices and structure to ensure program effectiveness and sustainability

Subject: Analysis of Park HS calls for the calendar year 2016

Good Afternoon Gentlemen

Attached you will find all the calls for service for the calendar year at Park HS. I also have all the reports done in a folder as well that is not attached, but accessible if needed. I deleted the calls that were not school related or that happened outside of school hours. I also added comments to some calls that were either not completed, still on hold for some reason, or other important details. My reason for doing this was two-fold:

1) to look at each call, read the report and see if we could do something different in some cases where students are being cited and/or arrested. I am not by any means trying to armchair quarterback what our officers are doing, but to try to find where we can train our officers to better serve the students. As we move forward with this partnership, training will be an essential component of this new division. A change in mindset and evolving as a police officer is essential to this.

2) to see if we are missing anything that is important for documentations purposes for RAPD/RUSD. As you all know, in today's climate, working with students we need to be extra vigilant in documenting and handling situations with the utmost professionalism.

After reviewing the reports, citations, and calls for service here are some suggestions I think we need to think about moving forward. With all of your approvals of course.

- All officers should clearly indicate immediately in the report whether they are working on or off duty in their police reports and how they are identified as Police Officers. This may seem minimal, but for liability purposes it is extremely important. For example, since September when the School COP Officers began, Ofc. Henry states on his reports that he is working "on duty for Racine Unified School District." It should clearly state he is working for RAPD to avoid confusion from outside parties if that ever came to be. It could be just an oversight also, due to being used to working at the schools. However, it is something I believe needs to be cleared up.
- Phoenix Supplements should be completed for all UMCC's. In a majority of the calls where citations were issued, there was minimal information and reason for the contact. Most of the time a name was there, but there was enough where a name was not even listed. Especially with Disorderly Conduct citations, I think the reason on how we came into contact with the students is essential to the narrative. Doing a computer report will allow more detail and documentation for the officer.
- There is a minimal amount of Use of Force documentation in cases where force is being used with students. An arrest in the schools is the same as the streets and the officers working the schools need to be sure to document all use of force and justification for doing so. Again, in today's climate, it is good business to cover yourself. Especially with the incident we did have at Park HS which caused officers to be suspended.

- And lastly, in a lot of the citations and arrests that were documented, the basis of the call was a student being “disorderly” , “causing a disturbance”, or “made other students or staff leave their locations” to see what the commotion is about. While by definition this may be Disorderly Conduct, but having the same officers in most of the buildings, an extra emphasis needs to put on the relationship part of the COP Model and make a connections with that student to dig deeper on why some of behaviors are occurring. We need to be aware than arrest may get a juvenile in the system who was having a bad day, or some other justification for their unexpected behavior. Or, now the financial strain of a DC ticket on the student and possibly the parent. I know that times arrests and citations are necessary for certain situations, but it is something that needs to be looked into based on a student by student basis. Also, other trainings will be an essential component of this, along with Crisis Intervention Training that most officers have already had. Of course there is discretion in these situations, but with training and experience, we can avoid some of these conflicts that often begin as school violations.

Thanks for your time
Sgt. Samuel D. Stulo

School COP Officer Roll-Out Lessons Learned

- Prior to the general meeting, it is imperative that the relevant command staff, supervisors and School COP Officers – referring to the full-time officers serving in the schools – are bought in to the program, understand the important aspects of the program and fully understand/embrace their roll in this meeting. Everyone represented in the organizational chart should be expected to exhibit leadership level qualities at the meeting and in their positions. They should conduct themselves professionally and serve as both representatives of and advocates for the program, especially at this meeting.
- The School COP Officers are leaders. They will make or break the success of this program on the ground. If they aren't bought in and work against the best interests of the District by sowing discord, they will impede the progress of the program.
- This meeting is an opportunity for management to understand the motivations of the officers serving in the schools. The questions that are asked are revealing and help management understand where officer's values and interests are as it relates to the work of the program.

Guiding Principals

The overarching philosophy of the School SOP Officer program will be guided by evaluative thinking. Evaluative thinking is defined, for these purposes, as:

“Critical thinking applied in the context of evaluation, motivated by an attitude of inquisitiveness and a belief in the value of evidence, that involves identifying assumptions, posing thoughtful questions, pursuing deeper understanding through reflection and perspective taking and informing decisions in preparation for action.”<sup>1</sup>

The Racine Police Department will use a Results-Based Accountability (RBA) structure for evaluating the effectiveness of the School COP Officer program. The 3 basic questions articulated in RBA will help guide formal program assessment and learning.

- 1) How much did we do?
- 2) How well did we do?
- 3) Is anyone better off?<sup>2</sup>

Evaluation Design

Officers working in the schools should take the survey 2x per year, 6 months apart. Once in the fall when school is starting and once at the end of the school year. This will allow RPD to measure changes in the attitude and approach of the officers working in the schools within each individual school year as well as across years.

Ideally, teachers and administrators in the schools will take the survey on the same schedule as the officers. The original idea was for school staff to take a survey related to the program via survey monkey in an informal survey structure, much like the police officers. RUSD will work with RPD to determine the appropriate questions for the staff survey.

Students, who are already surveyed and tested extensively, will answer a few additional questions that RPD and Unified will work together to create. These questions will be about the school officer program and will be added to an existing survey that the students already take. The decision about when and how to survey the teachers and students is ultimately up to the school district.

School COP Officer Program Needs Going Forward

1) Orientation for New School Officers (COP & Part-Time)

One need identified is a standardized orientation process for officer's working in the schools for the first time. It may also be necessary for all current officers working in the schools to participate in a truncated version of orientation given the new structure and focus of the program.

Orientation should include a one-on-one meeting with the relevant school principal. This will give the principal an opportunity to share their specific vision of their school with the new officer, thus helping the officer focus their activities in accordance with the culture and goals of the school within the bounds of the School COP Officer program.

2) Multi-Disciplinary School Safety Teams

Another clear need is increased collaboration between the various stakeholder groups working within the schools. This is particularly true to of RPD officers and Unified staff and administration. A multi-disciplinary school safety team structure, where each school has its own safety team that focuses on proactive problem solving, can help foster this increased collaboration.

Currently, in so far as these teams already exist, they tend to focus solely on emergency response planning rather than ongoing strategies for supporting individual student needs and overall proactive approaches to safety.

These teams will also allow for the introduction of additional resources to the schools, like mental health case worker partnerships. The need for more resources around the issue of mental health came up again and again throughout the development of this program. This is a significant need in the Racine schools and should be a central focus going forward.

3) School Officer Training – Orientation and Ongoing Schedule

There is currently no training plan for officers specific to working in the schools in Racine. Regular training that focuses on the specific skills needed to successfully engage youth is a key best practice amongst high quality school resource officer programs.

4) Alternative Disciplinary Practices

Ensuring that RUSD and the School Officers have regular access to positive alternatives to traditional school discipline will be central to how successful this program is in improving student outcomes around safety and achievement.
